BOLD ROBBERY ON WAYNE-ST

Yeggs Break Into Second-Hand Store and Escape With Large Amount of Loot, Valued at Nearly $300—News Is Suppressed by Police.

Brave Woman Fires Thru Door at Man Who Attempts to Enter Home—Other Houses Visited by Prowlers, But No Arrests Are Made.

Thieves, again operating in the downtown section, robbed the Frank Russell, second hand store, 108 E. Pearl-st., two doors east of Main-st., shortly before midnight Saturday by knocking the plate glass out of the front door window. This robbery was committed only a few feet from a police report box. They ransacked the place and took loot valued at nearly $300. Thirty-five rings were taken, valued at $100; two gold watches worth $40; two diamond lavalliers, worth $40; one watch chain set with three diamonds, worth $15; three revolvers worth $25; six razors priced at $20; one new suit of clothes worth $25 and two overcoats valued at $25 each.

CRASH IS HEARD
A man who works a short distance from Russell's store heard the crash of the glass, but did not investigate. This was between 11:30 and midnight. At 7 o'clock Sunday morning Detectives Billstine and Reed of the day police force went to Russell's home opposite his store and told him of the robbery.

Monday morning a car inspector found part of the loot in a local freight yard and reported it to Russell. A warrant was filed for the arrest of a suspect by Russell. Russell closed his store at 10 o'clock Saturday night and left the place in company with John Schleselman, 322 N. Jackson-st., who is employed at the store. Schleselman identified part of the loot Monday morning that was found in the freight yard.

News of the robbery was suppressed by the police.

FIRE AT PROWLER

A night prowler at the home of Mrs. W. H. Frymer, 422 W. Vine-st., narrowly escaped being penetrated by a bullet when he tried to gain entrance thru a rear door it became known Monday. Mrs. Frymer was alone in the house with her two babies when she heard footsteps on her back porch. Soon she heard the intruder rattle the door knob. "Who's there?" she demanded. "Me," the stranger replied. She slipped quickly to a buffet drawer, the woman secured a revolver. Pointing it in the direction of where she last heard his steps, she pulled the trigger and a bullet crashed thru the door. The prowler made a hasty getaway.

Police were notified but a search investigation proved futile.

News of this also was suppressed by police.

TRY TO ENTER HOME

When Mr. and Mrs. Fred Epps, 517 E. Findlay-rd., returned home Saturday night at 9 o'clock, they found that an attempt had been made to enter their house. Footprints could be seen around the windows, and a ladder, which had been removed from a rear building, was hoisted to an upstairs window. Police were notified but were unable to find a clue that might lead to the arrest of the thug. The belief is that the burglar was frightened away by the early return home of Mr. and Mrs. Epps. This news was suppressed.

Mrs. D. P. Rumsey, 791 Holly-st., was given a scare when a man tried to gain entrance to her home thru two rear windows. His attempts were frustrated when Mr. Rumsey leaped out of a rear door. The intruder ran, making a successful getaway.

Mrs. A. J. Good, 811 Holly-st., also heard a prowler on the back porch at her home. Mr. Good went to the door in time to see the man running around the corner of the house.

FIRST STORY TRUE, NEELY SAYS

Her Testimony in McGannon Trial Stands, Court Rules

CLEVELAND — (By Associated Press) — A motion by the defense in the second degree murder trial of Judge William H. McGannon, to strike out the testimony of Miss Mary E. Neely, important witness for the state, was overruled by Judge Homer G. Powell today after Miss Neely admitted that "to the best of her knowledge and belief" she had told the truth during the judge's first trial.

The court's decision came after a spirited battle between attorneys for both sides, during which defense attorneys declared if Miss Neely's testimony was permitted to go before the jury it might count against the judge and lead the jurors to believe she had not told the truth when testifying for the state at the first trial.

William H. Boyd, defense attorney, asked that Miss Neely's testimony be stricken from the records on the ground that she had, in reality, refused to testify when on the witness stand Friday.

When court recessed at noon County Prosecutor Stanton announced the state had about completed its case and it was likely he would rest this afternoon.

After ruling against the motion of the defense to strike out Miss Neely's testimony, the court then asked both sides if they wished to question Miss Neely further. Attorney Boyd said the defense did not care to recall her. Prosecutor Stanton reserved the right to summon her later if desired.

Mrs. Harold Kagy, widow of the murder victim, was then placed on the stand. She identified clothing worn by her husband on the night of the shooting. City Detective William Peters and Sergeant Fred Schutt were then called by the state to attack the defense's alibi that Judge McGannon boarded a street car for home at 12:30 o'clock on the morning of the shooting.

FARMERS SPLIT ON TAXATION PLAN

Differences Arise Over Programs Before Ohio Legislature

DIVIDED ON UNIFORM RULE

Three Big Organizations Not Backing Corn Stalk Club

COLUMBUS — (By Associated Press) — The taxation question, long a burning one in Ohio, has practically pushed all other proposed legislation now before the general assembly into the background. Unlike previous legislative years, however, there appears to be a distinct division among those representing the farm interests on the tax question, who heretofore have been united and able to block any plan that was not to their liking. Whether there will be sufficient cohesion among the farmer representatives to represent any breaking away from the old uniform rule under which all property is taxed on the same basis, and also to prevent any breaking down of the bounds of the Smith one per cent law still remains in doubt, but with the chances favoring a new alignment predominating.

CLUB CHIEF OPPOSED
This year, the leaders of the three big farm organizations, the Ohio State Grange, the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and the Ohio Home Protective League are not backing the leader of the Corn Stalk club, the farmer organization of the legislature which heretofore has been able to dominate the situation. They are actually strenuously opposing him on the question of breaking away from the uniform rule and substituting a limited form of classification.

Standing firmly by the proposed classification amendment as offered in the legislature by Representative Silver of Preble-co, C. A. Dyer, of Coalition League, in a statement issued yesterday stoutly takes issue with Representative John B. Chester of Paulding-co, president of the Corn Stalk club, on the classification proposal. Dyer asserted that the uniform rule should be enforced as long as it is a part of the constitution, that a better way would be to substitute some other system of taxation which would compel all to share in the payment of taxes.

TAX VOTE WEDNESDAY
The first taxation measures of importance will be up for a vote in the house of representatives Wednesday afternoon. Two of them proposing constitutional and statutory debt limitation are expected to receive general support both from the rural and urban members. The other, however, may develop a test of strength between those favoring breaking away from the present system and those adhering to it. The measure is the Taft bill which seeks to abrogate all limitations of the Smith one per cent law for a period of three years in order to allow taxing districts to balance their accounts. In the past, the rural members have prevented any serious modification of these bounds, but with the new alignment, it is believed the measure may be passed. It is intended as a forerunner of other taxation measures designed to solve the taxation question permanently.

Both branches are scheduled to hold only short sessions this evening at which nothing more than introduction of bills will be done. Tuesday the house will vote on the constabulary bill.

Parishioners and the public will be given an opportunity to view the body in the bishop's residence this afternoon and tomorrow morning and also while lying in state in St. John's Cathedral after vespers tomorrow afternoon.

Immediately after the funeral services Thursday the body will be laid in the crypt beneath the main altar of the cathedral. In this vault are the bodies of the three former bishops who served in this diocese.

FALLS TO DEATH

Ohio Woman Prisoner Dies Trying to Escape Jail

TOLEDO — (By United Press) — Mrs. Myrtle Hensley, convicted of murdering Leo Cousino, and sentenced to life imprisonment in Marysville reformatory, died yesterday afternoon from injuries suffered in an attempt to escape from the Lucas-co jail. Mrs. Hensley early yesterday morning managed to escape to the roof of the jail. Knotting blankets together, she tried to slide to safety. Forty feet from the ground she fell. Her moans were heard by jail inmates who called for help. Mrs. Hensley was found unconscious. Concussion of the brain and a fractured spine caused death. She left a note to her daughter saying she was going to try for the outside tonight, and adding "I may be killed but I am not afraid. Remember your mother was not a coward."

Thereafter a part of the commission will return to Japan, the remainder expecting to go to Europe for more than one year to continue their ship investigations.

BOOST IN TRADE, HARDING'S AIM

Will Make Business Appeal the Keynote of His Inaugural Address, Says Forecast—Questions of World Peace and Taxation May be Deferred.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. — (By Associated Press) — A plea that the nation forget the animosities and partisanship of the after war period and put its shoulder unstintingly to the wheel of reconstruction is expected to form the keynote of Warren G. Harding's message to his fellow countrymen when he comes into the presidency.

Altho the inaugural address is still far from complete, it was learned today that considerable work had been done towards its preparation and that the subjects it is expected to cover virtually had been selected.

BUSINESS APPEAL

It is understood it will be very brief and will attempt no detailed discussion of any of the problems awaiting solution. One of the outstanding features is expected to be an appeal for confidence in the nation's business stability, linked with an assurance that during the next four years the administration will keep away from meddling methods in its relations with the business world.

DETAINED STATEMENT OF A TAXATION POLICY, HOWEVER, IT IS BELIEVED UNTIL CONGRESS HAS BEEN CALLED INTO SPECIAL SESSION PROBABLY IN APRIL.

It is believed Mr. Harding's address will touch very briefly on the question of an international peace association and will tersely pledge the incoming administration to use its best effort to secure a peace agreement compatible with American aspirations. There is expected also to be a word of friendship for Mexico and the rest of Latin America.

For the present Mr. Harding is devoting little time to the actual wording of the document and most of the real work of putting his ideas into language probably will not be done until next week. He has a heavy appointment list during the next few days and by Saturday will have heard the advice of several prominent party leaders, including Charles E. Evans Hughes, generally understood to be the prospective secretary of state. Mr. Hughes is expected to reach St. Augustine Friday or Saturday.

Among those who had appointments today was Thomas W. Lamont, a partner in the Morgan house, who helped frame the financial sections of the treaty of Versailles. The purpose of the conference was not revealed, but it was presumed that it related to various questions of international finance.

TURKEY HOPES FOR COMPROMISE

Lenient Attitude of Allies in Conference Sought

CONSTANTINOPLE — (By Associated Press) — Hope that allied delegates would enter the Near Eastern conference to be held in London next week with a compromising spirit was expressed here today by Abdul Mejid Effendi, heir presumptive to the Turkish throne. Only by such an attitude on their part would it be possible to establish peace in the Near East, and he said it might be too late to insure an end to hostilities, if the Turkish Nationalists have made any military agreements with the Russian Bolsheviks. He indicated that Turkey was awaiting with interest the development of the Near Eastern policy of President-elect Harding.

REIGN OF TERROR LASTS 'TIL DAWN

Bold Hold-ups Staged at Early Morning Hour as Restaurant Cashier On His Way to Work, is Abruptly Halted With Gun Play.

ENTRANCE ATTEMPTED AT HOME OF H. C. ROBERTSON ON WEST HIGH-ST.

Robberies Being Reported to News Office and Letter Writer Cites Recent Burglaries With Perpetrators Still Free.

Auto bandits added to the reign of terror in the West End of the city early Monday morning when they staged two hold-ups and escaped.

Tom Grange, 573 Hazel-ave, an employe of the New Hudson restaurant, was held up at the point of a gun by two yeggs on Wayne-st just west of Metcalf at 1 o'clock Monday morning while on his way to work. He had no valuables in his pockets and the job netted the robbers nothing, altho they searched him thoroughly.

Grange said that a Ford automobile was standing near the curb on Wayne-st as he approached. It carried no lights or license tags and as he neared a man jumped from the machine and jammed a gun against his body.

Another man was seen coming from the east along Wayne-st and as he approached the other occupant of the automobile jumped out and forced him to submit to search at the point of a revolver. His name could not be learned. Grange said he believed the yeggs got a small amount of money from the second victim.

After searching the two men the thieves, one short and wearing a cap and the other tall and wearing a slouch hat, jumped in the auto and sped south on Metcalf-st.

This holdup was reported to police, altho it was not made public by headquarters. No arrests were made.

PROWLER ATTEMPTS TO FORCE AN ENTRANCE TO HOME ON WEST SIDE

An attempt was made early Monday morning by a prowler to force an entrance to the home of H. C. Robertson, 763 W. High-st. Mrs. Robertson was awakened by a noise at a front window and arose. She determined that someone was endeavoring to gain an entrance and called her husband.

The man was frightened away when Robertson called George Highfield, who lives in the other half of the house.

The man was seen to run from the house.

Another attempt was made by a prowler to enter the Robertson home a week ago. Mr. Robertson had accompanied some guests home after a party at his house and Mrs. Robertson was in the kitchen washing dishes. She was alone in the house.

A man stepped to the rear door and hammered on it. She frightened him away and her husband returned a few minutes later. A search was made by him and four shots fired to frighten the thug.

ALIENS SLAIN ON RETURN HOME

Hungarians, Leaving U. S., Victims of Murder Gang

BUDAPEST. — (By Associated Press) — A number of Hungarians who have returned recently from the United States have become victims of an organized murder gang here. Disguised as guides, members of this organization lurk near the railway terminals and press their services upon unsuspecting arrivals, who are then lured into out-of-the-way places, waylaid and robbed and sometimes murdered.

A few days ago the body of George Bodnar was taken out of the Danube, where it had evidently been thrown. He arrived in Budapest recently from Connecticut with $3,000 in his possession. Peter Kelen, of Columbus, Ohio, who brought $2,000 with him, was kidnapped and later was found shot to death in a neighboring town.

The repeated murders have caused the authorities to post warnings on the walls of the terminals, and a close watch is being kept for members of the gang.

FESS IN ADDRESS ON LINCOLN

Large Audience Hears Former Lima Man Here Sunday

PORTRAYS LINCOLN'S LIFE

Congressman Pleads For Support of New Executive

Congressman S. D. Fess delivered an excellent address on "The Humanity of Lincoln," before a large audience in Memorial Hall Sunday afternoon.

Fess gave a very intimate portrayal of the life of the great emancipator. He said that Lincoln is not only remembered for what he said, but also for what he did. It is said that Lincoln had only six months schooling. The speaker in relating the series of debates that Lincoln had with Douglas in 1858 stated that in these debates Douglas was thinking of the way in which he made his statements and Lincoln was thinking of what he said. People remembered what Lincoln said, but forgot what Douglas said. Fess visited all of the seven towns in Illinois where the debates were held.

"A copy of one of Lincoln's speeches is held in the British Museum as the finest specimen of English ever uttered," the speaker said. "His first speech in New York is spoken of as the greatest in literature. What is the explanation of Lincoln's wonderful ability to clothe his thought in such wonderful language? The explanation is found in the books that Lincoln read. Lincoln had few books but those which he read and re-read and committed much of them to memory. These books were: The Bible, Shakespeare, Pilgrim's Progress, Esop's Fables and Wells's Life of Washington. Lincoln's learning was astonishing to many a scholar. The speaker stated that the crying danger of today is that there is too much of a taste for the trashy book and not enough for the greatest book, God's book. SPOKE TO BE UNDERSTOOD

Lincoln never spoke to be heard—he always spoke to be understood. He used the epigram a great deal. One of the secrets of his power was in his control of men. The speaker illustrated this by telling the way he handled Stanton, the Secretary of War.

"Lincoln had a great sense of humor and there was also much of pathos in his life, with a wonderful breadth of sympathy. One of the most touching incidents related was during one of his frequent visits to the hospital when a rebel soldier who was dying asked that he might see Lincoln. Lincoln ministered to this soldier during the last moments of his life.

"Lincoln had the most profoundly religious nature of any president we have ever had. He was like a child in the presence of God. When he was bidding farewell to his friends in Illinois he said 'God can go with me and stay with you.' He had the greatest faith in God and a great faith in humanity.

"Sixty years ago Lincoln needed the backing of the entire nation but did not receive it. The leader of today who will soon enter the White House should have the nation's sympathy and support."

R. H. HAMILTON CHAIRMAN
T. R. Hamilton introduced Congressman Fess with fitting words. He asked all the people present who went to school to Congressman Fess to arise. Quite a number of people stood up. Two of Congressman Fess' former teachers were also present.

One of the features of the meeting was an ovation to the Grand Army men who were present. R. N. Rockhill was one of the G. A. R. men present who brought with him a certificate which he received from Lincoln for service rendered in guarding the city of Washington.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Rev. Kirk O'Farrell read the scripture lesson and Rev. J. Allen Canby led in prayer. The mass singing was led by S. C. Hildy. Miss Helen Bowers sang a solo in a pleasing manner.

However, the money could not be found upon Sauer, when he was searched later at police headquarters. It is said.

ALLIES DEFIED BY TURK LEADER

Must Accept His Peace Terms, Says Nationalist Chief

WELCOMES U. S. AS MEDIATOR

Outlines Demands to be Made on London Meeting

Mustapha Kemal, noted leader of the Turkish nationalists, in an exclusive statement to the United Press today defies the allies, lays down his peace terms, and welcomes American mediation.

Kemal is at his headquarters at Angora, Asia Minor, where he gave the statement to the United Press courier. Hostilities between the Turks and Greeks have been suspended pending a decision by allied ministers meeting in London on the matters in dispute between Turkey and Greece.

Kemal is reputed to have 10,000 men. He is faced by a large Greek army, commanded by General Vlachopoulos. The Greeks want to put the Sevres treaty into effect.

Former Premier Venizelos is now in London attempting to insure enforcement of the treaty which he took a large part in drafting.

BERLIN.—American meditation between Greece and the Turkish nationalists will be welcomed, Mustapha Kemal, leader of the Nationalists, declared in his first public statement, made to the United Press.

The statement was received here today, having been brought by a courier from the headquarters of the Turkish general at Angora, Asia Minor, from which point he controls the activities of his troops.

Intervention by President Wilson in Armenia is unnecessary, Kemal said, because peace has already been established there.

TERMS SUBMITTED
Defying the allies, Kemal rejects the treaty of Sevres and demands that Constantinople be left under control of the Turks. He submits the following as his terms of peace.

1—Nullification of the treaty of Sevres.

2—Constantinople must remain under Turkish sovereignty her security to be guaranteed by the allied nations.

3—Freedom of navigation thru the Dardanelles, under regulations laid down, not by England, but by the Black Sea sovereign states.

4—Renunciation by Greece of her imperialistic aims.

ATKINS BRITAIN, FRANCE
Kemal made a long and bitter attack on Great Britain, France and Greece which have tried to make the Sevres treaty effective in Turkey.

"By its heroic resistance," he said, "the Turkish people shows its conscious of its rights and duties. The treaty of Sevres banishes our political, jurisdictional, economic and financial independence, deprives of the right to live. Therefore, it is non-existent for us.

"We are fighting in defense of our national existence. We leave to the civilized world to judge the justice of our cause.

"For over a thousand years Syria (assigned to the Greeks under the Sevres treaty) was a Turkish town," Kemal declared. Greece possesses no rights whatever. Extermination of the Turks there is a continuation of the policy of extermination applied by the Greeks in Thessaly, Crete and Macedonia."

GUYTON INSISTS ON SOLEMNITY

Justice of Peace Performs His First Marriage Ceremony

William H. Guyton, Justice of the Peace, Holmes building, believes the marriage ceremony, even though in its nature, should be invested with a sacred atmosphere.

Accordingly, when Justice Guyton performed his first marriage ceremony at the court house Monday morning, it was not much different from that used by ministers. The contracting parties were Aylmer R. Wright, 25, farmer, Elbridge, New York, and Miss Edith Benson, 21, teacher, 105 N. Union-st.

After Justice Guyton had pronounced the questions, he inquired of them, "as you shall answer unto Almighty God, searcher of all hearts."

Then after they had plighted their troth, he pronounced them husband and wife, with the same solemn words used by a minister.

It was the first time that such a sacred marriage ceremony has ever been performed within the walls of the Allen-co court house. All such ceremonies in which he will be the celebrant will be the same in the future, Justice Guyton announces.

"It is a sacred ceremony and should be surrounded with a sacred atmosphere and all that can be brought to it of righteous things," Probate Judge J. H. Hamilton declared. Employees of the probate office and newspaper reporters listened in awe, as it seemed more like the words which fell from the lips of a minister than a Justice, as Guyton celebrated the sacred vows between the contracting parties.

JUDGE ACCUSED OF CRIME BY WELTY

Landis is Impeached by the Ohio Congressman

NEGLECT OF DUTY CHARGED

Unfitted for Bench by Accepting Baseball Job, Claim

WASHINGTON.—(By Associated Press.)—Federal Judge Keneaw Mountain Landis of Chicago, was impeached in the house of representatives today by Representative Welty, Democrat, Ohio, who charged him with "high crimes and misdemeanors" in connection with his acceptance of the position of supreme arbiter of baseball at a salary of $42,500 a year.

Should the house decide to institute proceedings against Judge Landis on the basis of Mr. Welty's charges, a formal trial before the bar of the house would be held and a decision rendered. Mr. Welty did not introduce a resolution proposing impeachment as is the usual procedure in such matters. Instead he arose to "a question of high and personal privilege" and announced that he "impeached" the judge.

WELTY'S CHARGES
Without debate Welty charges, on Mr. Welty's motion, were referred to the judiciary committee for investigation and report. There were a few scattering noes.

Impeachment was proposed by Mr. Welty on the basis of five specific charges as follows:

"First—For neglecting his official duties for another gainful occupation not connected therewith.

"Second—For using his office as district judge of the United States to settle disputes which might come in to his court as provided by the laws of the United States.

"Third—For lobbying before the legislatures of the several states of the Union to produce the passage of state laws to prevent gambling in baseball, instead of discharging his duties as district judge of the United States.

"Fourth—For accepting the position as chief arbiter of the disputes in baseball associations at a salary of $42,500 per annum while attempting to discharge the duties as a district judge of the United States which tends to nullify the effect of the of the judgment of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and the base-line gambling indictments pending in the criminal courts of Cook-co, Ill.

"Fifth—For injuring the national sport of baseball by permitting the use of his office as district judge of the United States because the impression will prevail that gambling and other illegal acts in baseball will not be punished in the open forum as otherwise.

There is little likelihood of action by the judiciary committee on the Welty charges at this session of congress, Chairman Volstead said.

"The fact that Mr. Welty retires March 4, does not affect the status of the proceedings, nor does the case necessarily end with adjournment of congress," Mr. Volstead added. "No arrangement has been made for a meeting of the committee but we probably will hear Mr. Welty orally and if the committee believes there is sufficient ground to go ahead, it will be necessary to adopt a resolution providing therefor."

In presenting his case, Representative Welty said the District of Columbia supreme court had entered a judgment of $240,000 against the American and National Leagues and the individual sixteen clubs composing those organizations "for having violated the Sherman anti-trust law." He also said a grand jury at Chicago had indicted ten base-

"This case is now pending before the court of the United States. HORSE NEARLY BURIED BY CAVE-IN IN ALLEY

KENTON — A sensation was caused here Sunday afternoon, and rumors of everything from an earthquake to the collapse of the roof of a giant underground cave were spread broadcast, when a horse hitched to a mail wagon standing in an alley near the Kenton postoffice, suddenly sank thru the earth, as a great mass of dirt caved in and tumbled into a large hole. It developed that the roof of an abandoned cellar, which extended under the postoffice building and the alley, had given away. The horse was not injured by its fall of ten feet, although a team of horses had to be used to drag the animal out of the hole.

Business Increase on Penna—Delphos News

DELPHOS — (Special) — The D. T. & C. railroad, sometimes called the "Delphos and Dayton" changed hands when John Ringling, of Ringling Bros. circus, sold the property to W. H. Ogborn, of Chicago, who was, before the transaction, general manager of the road. It is thought that no change will be made in the line-up of officials and that W. G. Ault will continue as superintendent; B. A. Fite as roadmaster; J. H. Lane as auditor and W. S. Sloan as master mechanic. It is thought Ogborn will continue as general manager, with added title as president. When the road was purchased in 1918 by John Ringling, it had been sentenced to be junked. As the price said to have been paid for the road was an even half million, Ringling probably made a handsome profit.

ASSETS PILE UP

Hunt For Shoe Stock of Baker & Kohler Continues

KENTON — (Special) — The stock of the bankrupt shoe firm of Baker & Kohler, which has been collected and stored here in a vacant room by Trustee M. Hayward, of Toledo, will be appraised this week.

Trustee Hayward says that the approximately $12,000 shoe stock and personal assets of the firm will not be sold at auction here until criminal proceedings, in connection with the charge against Ernest M. Baker and Arthur A. Kohler, the bankrupts, for concealing assets, are disposed of in federal court at Toledo.

The $12,000 stock stored here represents, largely, the merchandise which, the trustee says, had been stored on farms and in various places by the bankrupts. They helped Trustee Hayward recover much of the material.

Baker and Kohler operated shoe stores in Kenton, Findlay, Gallon, and Ottawa, Ill., and when they were thrown into bankruptcy their liabilities totalled more than $100,000 and their assets as listed only a little more than $50,000. Investigators have recovered assets which bring the total to approximately $85,000, it is stated.

In habit, one exception is noted in the absence of the nocturnal serenade common to the coyote tribe.

LIMA A DUMPING GROUND

THERE is ample proof that Lima is becoming a dumping ground for old-time crooks who have been driven out of the larger cities. They find refuge here; are allowed to take up their residence and take their time in picking out the places they hope to rob. All this because of laxity on the part of the administration and the police department.

Crime continues. True, it has consisted of more or less petty offenses to date, but there have been scores of such instances. If the police department is unable to cope with these novices, what will it do when the experts begin?

Sections of the city have been terrorized. Women have been outraged and homes entered. The police have failed to make a single arrest. Higher-ups rest on their oars and fail to act.

Instead of arrests, police executives clamp on a censorship to prevent the public from learning the true state of affairs. Thugs may operate at will and the public will know nothing about it so far as headquarters is concerned.

One of the most successful thieves the country has ever known, a man who plied his trade in four countries and then reformed, recently told organizations of business men of Lima that the best safeguard against crime was publicity. He spoke from experience gained in 23 years of outlawry. He knew what he was talking about when he said that crooks steer clear of cities where crime is given publicity. But police officials of Lima work entirely opposite to this theory.

The fact that there is dissension in the ranks of the police force has come to light. Charges that higher-ups lag, in fact fail to give to men on the streets the support they should have in their work of breaking up crime are being made. This condition cannot work for the best results in running down criminals.

It is up to city officials to investigate and place before the public the true state of affairs; to get results thru the police department that will make the city safe for law-abiding citizens.

PAYING DEBT OF HONOR

THERE is one debt a sorrowing country should hasten to discharge—a moral debt to men shattered and invalidated by military service.

A saddening aftermath of the war is received in the figures made public by Surgeon General Cummings concerning the number of American ex-soldiers suffering from tuberculosis, mental diseases and other afflictions which can be charged to their service for their country. Instead of declining, the number of such patients in the hospitals of the public health service is increasing at the approximate rate of 1,000 a month. And it is expected that by the time the peak is reached in 1927 or 1928, from 30,000 to 35,000 beds will be required.

Analysis of the 19,010 war risk insurance hospital patients for a week prior to January 1, shows that 7,586 were suffering from tuberculosis, 5,680 from neuro-psychiatric ailments and 5,743 were undergoing general treatment.

It is doubtful if these figures can be read by any American without emotion. The Surgeon General wants $30,000,000 to provide additional beds and to improve hospital facilities. It is little enough to devote to the adequate care and cure of the men who gave their health and their reason in their country's cause.

SKY IS BRIGHTENING

PATIENCE is now all that is necessary. Times are growing better in a manner that might properly be termed rapidly. It is only a matter of waiting a short while until times will be good again. There has been no panic; there has been nothing that looked like one. We had just slowed down; that's all.

We found it necessary to go on slow and simply shifted gears, but we are now changing to second and the going looks so good that we'll soon again be in high.

Word from the east is that prospects are brightening continually. It is predicted that within a few months all the factories and mills will be running again; that retail merchants will be in the market—clamoring for stocks and things will be as they used to be.

There is no shortage of money, as has been the case so often before money went into hiding. Nobody has been scared this time. People who had the money were not afraid, but they saw it increasing in value in the process of readjustment. Naturally, they wanted to hold it until it should attain its full value. The holder of any commodity dislikes to let go of it when its price is steadily rising.

However, it is believed that within a short while everything will have settled into its proper place. Prices of everything, money included, will be more or less permanently adjusted and then we will all move forward again.

It would be in order for Chief Roush to ask council for a special guard for police headquarters to prevent yeggs from ransacking it.

Forty-nine Democrats signed a request yesterday for a national committee meeting. We're surprised to know there are that many left.

MISS LIMA: "Before electric lights were introduced, mortality from blowing out the gas was high. It is now maintained by those who step on the gas."

CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPONS

ARGENTINIANS believe that gun toting is a preventative of crime. It is admitted that it possibly holds some sort of crime in check, as it did in the frontier days of this country when all men were armed. It no doubt made men less quarrelsome. One hesitated to give serious affront to another, for the man insulted always had the first move, which was apt to be a sudden and deadly one. Carrying a gun enforced politeness.

However, it did not repress other crimes for instance that of stage robbery. The drivers, messengers and passengers were heavily armed, it was seldom that they could use their weapons which became a part of the plunder of the bandits.

Whatever reason there may be for the arming of the population of Buenos Aires there is no reason why the average man should go armed on the streets of American cities, unless it should be that permits are issued to responsible citizens during a time when a crime wave is sweeping the city such as Lima has been experiencing recently.

Every man has the right to keep firearms in his home and most of them do. The average citizen is in little or no danger from a murderous attack by another average citizen. In the night season, tho he is in danger of being attacked by the "stick up" man, a gun would be of little use, for before he could draw he would probably be punctured by a bullet from the holdup's gun, ready for use in a moment.

We have a law against carrying concealed weapons, the enforcement of which is generally ridiculous. The man in possession of a gun unlawfully is seldom punished severely, unless he has shot or attempted to shoot someone with it. In other cases he is given a small fine or else the offense is ignored or a suspended sentence imposed. The defendant goes home with the belief that his appearance as a potential slayer has been approved by the authorities and in time he becomes a real slayer.

In the meantime, gun toting is encouraged by the lack of a law prohibiting the indiscriminate sale of firearms. They are on display in many stores. No account is taken of the transactions in them. They are sold to whoever may have the price and thus they are distributed among the population without any check on them.

MORALE IN PEACE TIME

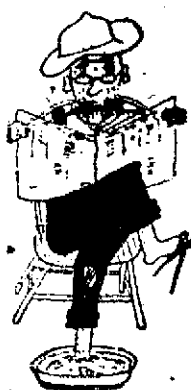

THIS country quickly provided the necessary balance of power to win the war because there was a tightening up of its morale to the highest pitch.

Germany's final defeat came as a result of the let-down in the morale of her people.

Our present business depression, as well as various other manifestations of these abnormal times, is the outcome of a relaxation of the high morale that was maintained during war times.

The country is fundamentally sound, but for the moment there is an impairment of confidence. It cannot last if the people will maintain that same will to work and will to overcome obstacles that won the war.

THE PTOSIS SISTERS

A feminine correspondent wishes to submit to an operation for the purpose of being rid of any of them. The trouble with such operations is that, like throwing out your mother-in-law, the end is not yet.

Once in a great while, perhaps once in every four thousand years, a patient does actually suffer some exceedingly annoying symptoms purely and simply from sagging or displacement of some organ or other. In such a case the first and obvious remedy is the rest cure—bed rest, with post-prandial knee-chest and other uplifting postures, and plain and fancy feeding, for the purpose of building up a pad of fat. Fat is the natural support of all those insides that mias their moorings and go peregrinating. After the first 30 days or so of this fat-building regimen, then mild but gradually increasing exercises may begin, both abdominal and general exercises, to restore some measure of normal muscle tone to a weak and flabby trunk.

Now for all you and I know our respective stomachs may be dangling against our sacral wings or disputing the ground with our respective appendices—yours may, at any rate. I have no appendix. But even so does it worry us? Why, no, of course not. We never worry about a displaced organ until we discover that it has been displaced—and then we feel so charmed to learn that our innards have been out of kilter all along and we never realized it! The blow is terrible, and some of us never quite get over it.

Operation for ptosis? I like operations myself. In all seriousness, I doubt that I ever enjoyed ten days better than I enjoyed the ten days I loafed while having my appendix obliterated, except, of course, the—well, we needn't drag in the hired girl.

But I'd rather entertain the whole Ptois family the year around than have an operation for ptosis.

YOUR NAME

By PHILIP FRANKS in "VARIATIONS" — "JACKMAN" RACIAL ORIGIN — "JACK" SOURCE — An occasional One naturally thinks of "Jack" in connection with these family names. But there is no connection. There is in which "Jack" and "man" have become compounded family name, if the rules of blibli evolve from a solid known and traceable or thousands of family names count for anything.

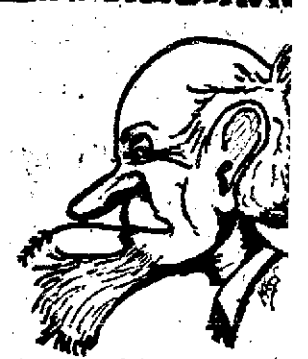

There is, however, another and logical explanation, backed up by actual records. We have in common use the word "jacket." The ending dictates that the word was a diminutive of some other was, but we don't realize the original word has been lost. Just as a "helmet" is "helm," so a "jacket" is "jack."

The "jack" of the middle is variously a coat of leather of mail, of the latter, casings were sewed on the coat for greater protection, worn sometimes by pea a regular garment, but for a part, and always when ready mail, it was used as armor of generous proportions almost to the knees. (Th does not.)

And the "jackman" or "j" was the soldier of whose it formed a part, in short, the professional soldier of the mounted man-of-arms, the cavalry who formed the backbone of the armed forces of the knights.

Shorty runs into Teebo!

Dear PETEY:

Checked up our old dormitory pal "Snapper" Teebo this morning waiting on an appointment down Peachtree St. "Snap" wanted to know a bookfull about my visit to the Camel factories. "Tell us old apple seed," says "Snapper," "you're on the inside!" "Snap" still has that mighty annoying way of saying, "But that doesn't surprise me."

Anyhow—when I explained about the millions of Camels R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. made daily what does the old bird sputter but: "Why, Shorty, they'd have to make that many to supply the demand! Camels have the quality smokers want! And, they have the most wonderful mellow mild body and the most refreshing flavor ever created in a cigarette! Of course they make Camels by millions; of course they buy enough revenue stamps from Uncle Sam every day to build a duplicate of the Winston-Salem post office! Why not? Smokers everywhere will have Camels!"

But, "Snap" finally got to spilling some real nobby Camel selling stuff! "Shorty," says he, "I want to put it on record that in all the times I've pulled Camels out of my pocket to supply somebody's shortage I've heard enough good things said about 'em to fill a volume! That's my brand! Camels are a wonderful cigarette! Like getting money from home, etc."

"And, Shorty, what's the answer? Why—Camels blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos meets the universal taste! And that's the 'hole' story, old golf ball!"

Pete, you pet photograph, did you ever hear a better record?

Sincerely,

Shorty Camel CIGARETTES

THE PARADISE MYSTERY

By J. S. FLETCHER

He was wonderful, all the time during which he reeled off these questions, if Mr. Gilwaters was wholly ignorant of the recent affair at Wrychester. He might be—place round his book-filled room had suggested to Bryce that he was much more likely to be a looker-on than a newspaper reader, and it was quite possible that the vents of the day had first words in reply to Bryce's questions convinced Bryce that his surmise was correct and that the old man had correct nothing at the Wrychester Paradise mystery, in which Ransford's name had, of course, figured as a witness at the inquest.

"It is nearly twenty years since I heard any of the names," remarked Mr. Gilwaters. "Nearly twenty years ago. But, of course, I can answer you. Mary Bewery was our governess at Braden Medway. She came to us when she was nineteen—she was married four years later. She was a girl who had been no friends or relatives in the north—educated at a school in the north—where, I understand, she had lived since infancy. Now then, as to Ransford and Bryce. They were young men from London, who used to come fishing in Leicester-shire. Ransford was a few years the younger—he was then a medical student in his last year, or he was an assistant surgeon in the army. Bryce was a bank manager in London. He was a branch of one of the big banks—a branch of the most useful purpose to tell it, it would have been seen that the prisoner really was guilty of a foolish and serious error of judgment. He himself, concluded the learned counsel, would go so far as to say that, knowing what he did, knowing what had been told him by his client in strict confidence, the prisoner, technically guilty, was morally innocent.

His Lordship, merely remarking that no excuse "any sort could be offered in a case of this sort, sentenced the prisoner to ten years' penal servitude.

Bryce read this over twice before handing back the book.

"Very strange and mysterious, Mr. Gilwaters," he remarked. "You say that you saw Bryce after the case was over. Did you learn anything?"

"Nothing whatever," answered the old clergyman. "I got permission to see him before he was taken away. He did not seem particularly pleased or displeased to see me. I begged him to tell me what the real truth was. He was, I think, somewhat dazed by the sentence, but he was also sullen and morose. I asked him where his wife and two children were, a mere infant—were. For I had already been to his private address and had found that Mrs. Brak had sold all the furniture and disappeared—completely. No one—thereabouts, at any rate—knew where she was or would tell me anything. On my asking this, he refused to answer. I pressed him—he said finally that he was only speaking the truth when he replied that he did not know where his wife was. I said I must find her. He forbade me to make any attempt. Then I begged him to tell me if she was with friends. I remember very well what he replied. 'I'm not going to say one word more to any man living.' Mr. Gilwaters," he answered determinedly, "I shall be dead to the world—only because I've been a trusting fool!—for ten years or thereabouts, but when I come back to it, I'll let the world see what revenge means! Go away!" he concluded. "I won't say one word more." And I left him.

"And—you made no more inquiries—about the wife?" asked Bryce.

"I did what I could," replied Mr. Gilwaters. "I made some inquiry in the neighborhood in which they had lived. All I could discover was that Mrs. Brak had disappeared under extraordinarily mysterious circumstances. There was no trace whatever of her. And I speedily found that things were being said—the usual cruel suspicious, you know."

"Such as—what?" asked Bryce.

"That the amount of the defalcations was much larger than had been allowed to appear," replied Mr. Gilwaters. "That Brak was a very clever rogue who had got the money safely planted somewhere—Australia, or Canada, or some other far-off region—to await his release. Of course, I didn't believe one word of all that. But there was the fact—she had vanished! And eventually, I thought of Ransford as having been Brak's great friend, so I tried to find him.

"And then I found that he, too, who up to that time had been practicing in a London suburb—Street-hamstead, also disappeared. Just after Brak's arrest, Ransford had suddenly sold his practice and gone—no one knew where, but it was believed abroad. I couldn't trace him anyway. And soon after that I had a long illness, and for two or three years was an invalid, and—well, the thing was over and done with, and, as I said just now, I have never heard anything of any of them for all these years. And now!—now you tell me that there is a Mary Bewery who is a ward of a Doctor Mark Ransford at—where did you say?"

"At Wrychester," answered Bryce.

"At Wrychester," answered Bryce.

FORCED TO QUIT WORK, HE SAYS

Ryan Back on Job Every Day Since Taking Tanlac

"I haven't lost any time from work since I finished my first bottle of Tanlac," said H. Ryan, well known watchman at the Metropolitan Building, residing at 93 Lincoln-st., Akron, Ohio.

"Yes, sir. Tanlac went right after my troubles and now I feel like a brand new man. Last winter I had an attack of rheumatism that got so bad I couldn't walk. My knees swelled up to twice their normal size and it seemed that my trouble was going to get the best of me, as I had to give up work. My stomach was out of order, also, and after meals I bloated all up and suffered misery for hours. I had to be taking something for constipation all the time."

"Nothing in the papers about Tanlac helping so many others, I fell in line for my share of the benefits and I certainly did get a wonderful share. My rheumatism is entirely gone, and my stomach is in such fine condition I can hardly tell I ever had indigestion. Tanlac is simply great, and I'm glad to let others know about it."

Tanlac is sold in Lima at Hunter's drug stores and the leading druggists in every town.—Adv.

opinion, Mark Ransford, seventeen years before, had taken advantage of his friend's misfortune to run away with his wife, and when Brak, alias Braden, had unexpectedly turned up at Wrychester, he had added to his former wrong by the commission of a far greater one.

Bryce went back to Wrychester firmly convinced that Mark Ransford had killed John Braden. He reckoned things must have elapsed since Braden, or rather Brak's release. He had probably heard, on his release, that Ransford and his wife, Brak's wife, had gone abroad—in that case he would certainly follow them. He might have lost all trace of them; he might have lost his original interest in his first schemes of revenge; he might have begun a new life for himself in Australia, whence he had undoubtedly come to England recently. But he had come, at last, and he had evidently tracked Ransford to Wrychester—why, otherwise, had he presented himself at Ransford's door on that eventful morning which was to witness his death? Nothing, in Bryce's opinion, could be clearer. Brak had turned up. He and Ransford had met—most likely in the precincts of the cathedral. Ransford, who knew all the quiet corners of the old place, had led up into the gallery with him, had forced the open doorway, had thrown Brak thru it. All the facts pointed to that conclusion—it was a theory which, so far as Bryce could see, was perfect. It ought to be enough—proved—to put Ransford in a criminal dock.

Dandruff Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single bit and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This remedy is really never fails.

TIGNER'S HAND MADE CIGARS

HER OWN CAREER

By PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

Gwenda returned to the kitchen all smiles. She glanced in at the biscuit, and up into the eyes of the huge John Neale person approvingly, then announced to him that Fern and his South American friend seemed to be hitting it off very well together.

"Oh, Manuel? Well, he would. He just naturally loves all women. You know how it is with those Latin men? New eyes—new love? Don't hope your pretty little cousin takes him seriously, poor child, for she'd have a nasty time of it. I'm afraid. Manuel has no heart at all. That does not mean that he is not warm-hearted and generous as all day. But his heart is a—universal one, don't you know? Beats for every pretty face under the sun, and all that."

"Pooh! Fern isn't likely to lose her head over him, so don't worry about that," said Gwenda with conviction in her voice. "Her heart is already filled with love for another man. Besides, Fern is not nearly as impressionable as you think her to be on first acquaintance. I know her, you see, so that's why I can speak."

"Manuel is the best pal that a man could possibly want," answered John, loyally.

"We've been all thru rough moments and adventures together, and he's always been white. And, after all, that's the test of a real friend. I never poke my nose into his affairs of the heart, except that I do know his weakness for all women. I have seen him in and out of love a hundred times and more. He seems to be irresistible to the majority of them."

"Come, let me rub that spot of flour off your nose, before you eat, Miss Gwenda," he finished, coming up to where she stood and flicking very gently at her nose with his silk handkerchief.

Gwenda stood still and looked up into his nice blue eyes as he performed the operation, and thought to herself, what a splendid pal he would make, and what a fine husband some girl would some day get in this handsome young giant.

"Thank you, and now we are about ready. The steak is perfect. The biscuit, poeas, and everything's on the table. You know I am due at the theater at nine-thirty or so, so we don't have too much time to linger over the meal, after all. And I do so love to linger over my dinner here. Of course, at home it was never done. So now that I have the chance to do so, you may be sure that I appreciate it."

"Dinner, Fern," she announced gaily, as they entered the studio again, bearing the goodiea with them.

"My, how quickly you got things ready, dear," called Fern in a surprised voice. "Why, Mr. Lopez and I have just started on to tell each other things, and here you are ready."

Manuel Lopez helped Fern to her feet and fussed over her chair, the way foreign men love to do, then seated himself next to her and absorbed her attention all the time that they were at dinner, save where here and there Gwenda forced him away from his monopoly of her with a laugh and a frown of playful disapproval.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in about a teaspoonful of that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

The Faith that Builds Railroads

MANY New York Central stockholders own only one or two shares—a savings nest-egg. But the holder of a few shares of stock has the same satisfaction as the larger investor of taking part in the development of an important public service while providing an income for himself.

In his classic study of "Lombard Street," Walter Bagehot, the brilliant English economist, asserted that a citizen of London of Queen Elizabeth's time would have thought it no use inventing railways because he would have been unable to conceive the possibility of collecting the vast sums of capital needed for their construction.

Even Bagehot, writing only fifty years ago, probably would have been amazed by the thought of attracting the capital needed for the building and development of a thirteen-thousand-mile railroad system like the New York Central.

Now nearing a century of public service, the New York Central Lines represent a property investment of $1,720,000,000. Against this investment stocks and bonds have been issued to the amount of $1,543,000,000—that is, the actual value of the property is greatly in excess of the outstanding securities.

Scattered throughout the United States and in many foreign countries are more than 120,000 individual investors and institutions who have become partners in this great enterprise.

The number of owners of the stock of the New York Central Railroad Company, the parent company of the system, has increased by forty per cent in the past four years.

The growth of railroad facilities, to keep pace with the ever-increasing demands of American industry, depends upon a continuance of this public faith in railroads as investments, which is so strikingly shown by the widespread ownership of New York Central securities.

"Do you mean to tell me," demanded the seer, "that you really believe that story about the prophet Elijah being fed by the ravens?"

"Why not?" replied the clergyman. "If a prophet's salary was anything like that paid to a present day minister of the Gospel, somebody must have fed him."

A Boston millionaire was talking about masterful wives. Masterful wives, he said, "were in the minority heretofore, but with the coming of universal suffrage the majority of wives are getting pretty masterful."

Murphy had been detailed to carry the sad news of the boiler explosion to the weeping widow. "Sure, now, ye shouldn't take on so," he said, consolingly. "Pat was stithy on the boiler when it blew up. They ain't found him yet, but he may come down fine and dandy any day."

GERMANS FLEEING FROM TAXES

Five Millions Preparing to Leave Fatherland

NATION'S CHIEFS ALARMED

Most Able-Bodied, Stalwart Sons Emigrating, Report

BERLIN—(By Associated Press)—Students of economic subjects assert that at least 5,000,000 Germans are preparing to leave the Fatherland for the United States, Mexico and South American states as soon as they are able to raise passage money, or obtain admission in the case of the United States.

A majority of the would-be emigrants have expressed a preference to go to South America.

Official and unofficial quarters have displayed considerable uneasiness over the class of men who are now emigrating or preparing to emigrate. The head of the government immigration office said:

"The most able-bodied, enterprising, stalwart sons of Germany are leaving. The very poor, the Communists, the radicals, the Bolsheviks, generally are remaining with us. It is the family of some substance which is moving out."

RUNNING FROM TAXES

One cause of this emigration is considered to be the tax laws and particularly the income tax, which virtually prohibits the salaried man from laying something aside for the rainy day. These men generally no longer patronize the banks. They are hoarding a little bit of salary each month, against the day they can emigrate.

In spite of the general agreement among political economists that Germany is overcrowded and that unless radical readjustments are made within one year the nation will be able to support only 50 per cent of the present population, suggestions have been made that the government take immediate steps to regulate the number and quality of emigrants.

WAKENED RACE FEARED

It is argued that this tide of emigration could be turned back upon Germany to good purpose. Germany's arid lands, if irrigated or drained, would be capable of supporting 10,000,000 additional persons, it is said, and the government has been urged to make these lands available to the numbers now flocking into the cities.

Dr. Max Hirsch who, writing in the Berlin Tageblatt, says: "Germans who are preparing to emigrate at this time should, for the sake of the Fatherland, reconsider." Unrestricted emigration eventually will result in a weakened, probably anemic race, he believes, in view of the character of the men who are leaving.

Others fear the exodus will result in an "impaired German culture" and suggest the advisability of state aid for the intellectuals who have been hardest hit by economic conditions.

Under the present German law an emigrant is permitted to take out with him 50,000 marks, tax-free.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR AUTO SHOW

Every Inch of Available Space Spoken For by Dealers

HARDING POLICY AWAITED

Heir to Turkish Throne Talks on Near East Problem

With double the floor space available this year than has ever been used for an automobile show in this city heretofore, the committee in charge of arrangements report that not an inch of space in the huge building of the Lima Motor Car Company remains unreserved for the coming exhibit, February 22 to 26.

Practically every detail in connection with the show has been completed, excepting the assignment of space and this matter has been delayed to permit each dealer all the time possible, to secure such special exhibit material and cars as he might be able to procure. A meeting will be held early during the present week at which time all space will be assigned, so that practically an entire week will remain during which the exhibits may be prepared.

Complete plans call for the decorating of both floors and the show-room which will be used for the exhibit. Two bandstands will be provided and there will be music and entertainment on each floor each afternoon and evening thruout the show.

Arrangements are being made for special service over the interurban lines entering the city, so that visitors from nearby points will be given frequent service until a late hour in the evening and other arrangements are being made for the comfort and convenience of visitors.

Good Times Just Ahead

PROSPERITY is within our reach in America. All we need to have and to hold it is a sane, sure grasp on its simple elements. They are Industry, Integrity, and Faith. These are the cardinal virtues of human relations. They are the underpinnings of healthy, natural business life and the foundation of a wholesome social system. They are the fountainhead from which Progress springs. A well-known business economist has called them the "Fundamentals of Prosperity." Your purchases are an expression of Faith. They are evidence of your industry. Make them confidently from business institutions of integrity. Buying is the backbone of prosperity. An active market means more employment, steadier earnings; benefits are passed around. Wise spending gives stability to earning and for that reason is farsighted thrift and sound economy. The call of today is for cheerful thinking, willing working and constructive action by you—everybody—NOW. Tomorrow's change for the better will come about through the combined efforts of each and every one of us. By sheer force of numbers and co-operation, by the high power of heart and mind, we can put Business on a firm, stable basis. We can do this because all of the material factors making for better business are right. Let's make an uncommon effort toward vision with courage, and forge ahead. Let's make an uncommon effort toward a common end—Good Times.
